Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Mt: Vernon and Its Surroundings, Some Incidents in the Life of General Washington The family name of Washington is derived from a person originally named William De Hertburn, which was changed in the 13th century to that of his manor called Washington, in Durham, England. Their pedigree dates from Odin, B.C. 70, involving a period of eighteen centuries, including to General Washington fifty-five generations, and contains some illustrious names. His mother was from an ancient and very distinguished family also. The episode about the cherry tree took place at Wakefield, and here the garden was laid out with his name made in different colors of flowers. He early developed a roving disposition and fondness for out-door life and sports. Some of the many things he did out of the ordinary before he was thirteen, were throwing a stone across the Rappahannock river; breaking in a blooded colt, which dropped dead; also climbing up and cutting his name above the rest on the side of the Natural Bridge, Va. He rapidly took his place among the...
