Indeed the rapid succession of brilliant discoveries, and their important applications, would seem at first sight to justify the opinion of many that it is only in the regions of physical inquiry, in the extension of man s dominion over nature, that our knowledge can receive much accession. They believe that mere intellectual speculation, in which the mind is as well the instrument as the subject, is barren of useful results, and that but little remains to reward the labours of inquirers in that field of investigation. Now, the reality of this distinction cannot iustly be admitted. Man s triumphs in the sphere of...
