According to legend Rome was founded by descendants of neas who, fleeing from Grecian rapine and the destruction of Troj, established themselves upon the rock-ribbed hills along the Tibers banks. Within the walls erected by Romulus and Remus the victims of oppression and tyrann were welcomed, protected and invested with citizenship. Their power increased with numbers, and in course of time their legions were sent to less progressive nations to instruct them in their arts and sciences, their literature and laws. The history of the civilized world for quite two centuries is the natural and logical amplification of the characteristics of those Trojan exiles. So, in a measure, it may be said the United States had its beginning. A band of refugees from Europe, seeking that freedom of religious thought and word which was denied them in their native country, settled in the wilderness of an unknown land, inhabited by savage beasts and still more savage men. They brought with them a social compact of democratic government, which was mutually agreed to and subscribed in the cabin of the Mayflower, while she was rocking upon the bosom of the Atlantic, along New Englands shore. The settlement thus fixed was fraught with weal or woe to all mankind. The principles of government then and there established have been preserved and propagated by countless offshoots of the storied pilgrim stock, and as well...
